

FREE TRIAL AGREEMENT

Valfin Tech — Lead Recovery & Follow-Up System

This is a simple, plain-English agreement for a no-cost trial period — not a long-term contract.

It exists so both sides know exactly what to expect, what's being shared, and how to end the trial cleanly if it's not a fit. Fill in every [BRACKETED] field before sending.

1. The Parties

This Free Trial Agreement ("Agreement") is entered into between:

- Valfin Tech ("Valfin," "we," "us"), the provider of the System described below; and
- [CLIENT LEGAL BUSINESS NAME] ("Client," "you"), located at [CLIENT ADDRESS].

Effective Date: [DATE] Primary Client Contact: [NAME, TITLE, PHONE, EMAIL]

2. What This Trial Is

Valfin will configure, deploy, and run a working version of its automated lead-response and follow-up system (the "System") for Client's business, at no cost, for a limited trial period. The goal is simple: let Client see the System working with their real leads and calls before deciding whether to continue as a paying client.

3. Trial Duration

This trial begins on the go-live date (expected within [X] weeks of signing) and runs for [1–2] month(s), ending on or around [END DATE] ("Trial Period").

Before the Trial Period ends, Valfin and Client will review results together (see Section 9) and discuss whether to continue under a paid Master Service Agreement. There is no obligation on either side to continue — see Section 8.

4. What Valfin Provides During the Trial

During the Trial Period, Valfin will, at no cost to Client:

- Configure and deploy the agreed System components for Client's business, based on information Client provides during onboarding
- Connect the System to Client's chosen phone number, calendar, and/or lead forms as needed
- Provide a Client Welcome Packet explaining how the System works and what to expect
- Monitor the System for errors and respond to issues Client reports
- Provide a results review near the end of the Trial Period, showing what the System did (leads handled, calls recovered, messages sent, appointments booked, etc.)

Exactly which System components are included in this trial is described in the attached Statement of Work, or in the engagement summary sent alongside this Agreement.

5. Client Responsibilities

For the trial to work, Client agrees to:

- Provide accurate information about their business (hours, services, pricing, team contacts, etc.) during onboarding, and let Valfin know promptly if anything changes
- Respond to reasonable requests for information or feedback within a few business days, so the trial isn't delayed
- Use the System as intended — i.e., let real leads and calls flow through it — so the trial reflects real results
- Make sure their own intake forms or paperwork include the standard text-message consent language Valfin provides (this keeps both sides compliant with SMS regulations)
- Designate one primary point of contact for onboarding questions and trial feedback

6. Authorization to Access Systems

To configure and run the System, Valfin (or its automation platform) may need limited access to certain Client accounts or tools — for example, a phone/SMS number, a shared calendar, a lead-intake form, or a spreadsheet used to track leads.

By signing this Agreement, Client authorizes Valfin to:

- Create, configure, and connect to the accounts and tools needed to run the System (Client will be told exactly what's needed before anything is set up — see the Access Request Checklist)
- Send and receive text messages and emails on Client's behalf through the System, strictly for the purpose of responding to and following up with Client's leads and customers
- View and record lead, call, and appointment information necessary to operate and report on the System

Valfin will not use this access for anything other than building, running, and improving Client's System, and will not share Client's access credentials with anyone outside Valfin.

7. Confidentiality

Both Valfin and Client may see information about each other's business during the trial — for example, Client's customer data, pricing, or internal processes, and Valfin's system design, prompts, and workflows.

- Each party agrees to keep the other's confidential business information private and to use it only for purposes of this trial.
- This does not apply to information that is already public, or that either party already knew before this Agreement.
- Client's own customer and lead data always remains Client's property (see Section 10).

8. No Obligation to Continue — Either Party May End the Trial Anytime

This is the most important section — read it carefully.

There is no cost, no penalty, and no obligation tied to this trial. Either Valfin or Client may end this Agreement and the trial at any time, for any reason, with simple written notice (an email is sufficient). If the trial ends early, Valfin will stop using any connected accounts and will return or delete Client's data as described in Section 10.

If the Trial Period ends and Client decides not to continue, this Agreement simply ends — no further action, payment, or notice period is required from Client. If Client decides to continue, the parties will sign a separate Master Service Agreement covering ongoing paid service.

9. No Guarantee of Specific Results

Valfin will configure the System carefully and in good faith, and will share real, honest results during and after the trial. However, Valfin does not guarantee any specific number of leads, calls, bookings, or amount of revenue. Results depend on many factors outside the System's control — including Client's existing lead volume, pricing, responsiveness, and market conditions.

Near the end of the Trial Period, Valfin will provide a results summary based on real data from the System (see the Results Report Template) so Client can make an informed decision about continuing.

10. Client Data Ownership

- Client owns all of its own business data — leads, customer records, communications, and appointment history — collected or generated during the trial.
- If the trial ends for any reason, Valfin will export Client's data (e.g., as a spreadsheet) and provide it to Client within [10] business days upon request, and will remove its own access to Client's connected accounts within [10] business days thereafter.

11. No Fees During the Trial

There is no setup fee, monthly fee, or any other charge during the Trial Period described in Section 3. If both parties agree to continue after the trial, fees and terms for ongoing service will be set out separately in a Master Service Agreement and Statement of Work — nothing here obligates Client to any future payment.

12. General

- This Agreement is governed by the laws of the State of [STATE].
- This Agreement, together with any attached engagement summary or Statement of Work, is the entire understanding between the parties for the Trial Period.
- Either party may sign this Agreement electronically, and an electronic signature is valid and binding just like a handwritten one.
